LEROY THOMAS BIOGRAPHY

Leroy Thomas (THE JEWEL OF THE BAYOU) was born on December 14, 1965 in Lake Charles La. At the age of 8, Leroy Thomas was learning how to play drums on five gallon paint buckets. Using nothing but little branches off of trees for drum sticks, not knowing he was on his way to becoming a very talented performer. He used a cardboard tube from some old Christmas wrapping paper, and would sing with not a care in the world. Leroy recalls that he latter heard that a man had an accordion for sale. He grabbed one of his dad's cassette players, and he and his friends walked four miles into town. Leroy asked the man, would you take a cassette tape player for that accordion? The man said sure. Leroy played that accordion all the way home down a gravel dirt road in Elton La. with pride and joy. At the age of 19 Leroy joined his father's band (Leo Thomas and His Louisiana Zydeco Band). Together they rocked the crowds at every performance. Along with the music, Leroy did auto paint & body work, and grew rice and soybean. Seven years later he moved to Houston, Tx. Leroy became a certified combination pipe welder. Meantime he had become renowned for playing the basic button accordion and the more sophisticated piano accordion. The Snap Bean Times says, "Leroy's band is the genuine article for some of the best accordion playing in the country; come out and see the master musician...a Jewel of the Bayou! Father and son had toured the world together. One day Leroy decided he needed to build up his own name. From that day on Leroy formed his own band called: Leroy Thomas & the Zydeco Roadrunners. Leroy's friendliness and accessibility make's him especially popular with fans, and his professionalism and reliability are considered a real plus in the music industry. Leroy would read about Clifton Chenier, the king of Zydeco. Oh how Clifton would mix some rhythm & blues into his Zydeco music. Over the years some Zydeco artists have added elements of funk, R&B, country, and rock into the Zydeco. But Leroy never forgot what beautiful music he was raised with."
